US 19 Construction

I know, seeing is believing, but FDOT has stated that the construction project on US 19 is actually in its final stages with paving dependent on temperatures.

We may soon see all six lanes of this busy traveled route through our city and county become fully open. Those familiar orange barrels may soon disappear! The road construction project was supposed to end last summer of 2015. Most medians have been redesigned and continuous right-turn lanes widened and paved along the highway. Because of temperatures effecting paving, crews could continue working along the roadway throughout May and into June, according to FDOT spokeswoman Kristen Carson in the Suncoast News. Temperatures must be at least 65 degrees or more to allow paving to be completed. The road crews did lose some work days due to weather, such as in this past January.

The Pasco County Chamber of Commerce is holding a contest to rename the Pasco section of US 19, similar to the way Hernando County has dubbed its section "Commercial Way". Access the Chamber's website to cast your vote. Nine finalist names have been narrowed down from 630 entries for voters to choose. Landscaping along the medians and a few other improvements suggested by the Chamber and West Pasco Board of Realtors will complete the final project.
